APPRECIATIVE KEEPERS

Fort Point and Negro Island Extend Their Thanks To Captain W. H. Wincapaw.

The last has not been heard from Captain William H. Wincapaw's Santa Claus stunt on Christmas Day. Arthur B. Mitchell, keeper of the Fort Point Light writes:

"We wish to thank you for Christmas greetings dropped from the air over this station on Christmas afternoon. The R.F.D. man leaves mail at our door each day, but never before have we had the pleasure of receiving papers and magazines delivered by plane. We are much pleased with the picture of Mr. Boynton.

We wish you and your associates a very happy and prosperous New Year. I am rather late to acknowledge owing to illness in the family." E. M. Reed, keeper of Negro Island Station, Camden, wrote:

"The package dropped by your plane at this station was much enjoyed. The occasion was a novel one and long to be remembered. Kind regards and all good wishes for the New Year."

NORTH HAVEN MEN FLEW

Monday morning the big eight passenger cabin seaplane piloted by Capt. Wincapaw, with assistant pilot took eight North Haven men for an air voyage furnishing an event in the career of each man. The course took them over Eagle Island, Castine, Belfast, over Camden Mountain and across the bay back to North Haven. The start was made at 10:10 and returned at 10:50. Those in the party were Zenas Burgess, Will Cooper, Capt. Russell Barter, Merle Mills, Herbert Parsons, James Tabbutt, Neil Burgess and Edgar Hopkins. Each man reports a great sail, and one of the party said: "I'd like to fly around the world with Capt. Wincapaw."

TWO FINE CARS

Manager Hopkins Takes Pride In the New Oakland
Pontiac Line

Two fine cars freshly styled for 1931 and presenting new elements of grace, comfort and performance—the new Oakland Eight and the new Pontiac Six—today made their initial bow to the American public. Oakland's most important change is found in the new synchro-mesh transmission which, combined with the 85-horsepower developed by the improved big V-type engine, provides easy shifting and second gear acceleration up to 40 to 45 miles per hour.

The Pontiac has been lengthened to a new wheelbase of 112 inches and its sturdy, 60-horsepower engine has been further refined. The Oakland wheelbase is 117 inches. Five wire wheels are standard equipment on both cars at no additional cost. New carburetor air intake silencers, developed by the AC Spark Plug Co., new electro-plated pistons, stronger frames and heavier "big-tooth" rear axle differential gears—these represent only a few of the additional improvements which enable the chassis of both Six and Eight to provide the full measure of performance and comfort suggested by the fleet lines of the smartly-tailored new Fisher Bodies.

As they flash past on the highways, the new cars more than ever create a "close to the road" impression of graceful power and low-swinging length. The most apparent external advancements in the styling of the distinctive new bodies are found in the sparkling, chrome-plated, in-built screens which conceal and protect the cores of the cross-flow radiators; in the new chrome-plated head lamps; in the long hoods secured by a single electro-plated handle lock on each side; in the one-piece full crown front fenders carrying chrome-plated indicator lamps and invisible splash control gutters; in the concave running board aprons smoothly continuing the body contours to the aluminum bound, rubber-covered steel running boards; in the rear splash aprons extending from fender to fender; and in the slope of the narrow windshield pillars. New belt moldings and new type wheels add further touches of distinction. Chrome-plated bumpers of new design, employing a heavy, single, convex bar, are provided on all models at a slight additional cost—adv.

TO CALIFORNIA AND BACK

Mr. and Mrs. E. C. Davis Complete California Visit and Find Much To Interest On Homeward Journey.

Third Installment)

From the home of Thomas Baxter in Stockton, Calif., Ernest C. Davis, Junior, a tract of land eight miles square, high up in the mountains, and occupied by 3,000 wild sheep. The air was very exhilarating, and Ernest enjoyed every minute of his stay, a feature of which was the tagging of the sheep. This necessitated a hazardous climb up the steep mountain side, and our Rockland traveler cheerfully concedes that his body was covered with goose flesh as his horse negotiated the narrow passes, and stones rained to unknown depths beneath them. Ernest sent the horse back home alone knowing full well that the animal's intuition would get him there safely. How he got back himself he would never be able to describe.

Among The Big Sticks

Mrs. Davis, guest of relatives meantime, was having a season of delightful sightseeing, the prime feature of which was a visit to Big Tree Grove at Cavalier. Big Tree Grove was a mistmeyer. Located 10,000 feet above sea level it produced trees 400 feet tall and 30 feet in diameter at the base—so wide that autos could have a free passage through the center of the stump. The roots had been cut from one tree and a dance hall contained in the base. The elevation naturally affected Mrs. Davis, who, however, forgot her faintness when she heard a roar such as a good sized bear might have emitted. The sound took on added realism when she learned that bears were occasionally seen in that locality. Be that as it may, she and the other members of the party beat a hasty retreat. From which it will be seen that Ernest did not have all of the adventures.

A Reminder Of Other Days

One of the most interesting towns which the party had visited was Murphy, the locale selected by Mark Twain when he wrote "Roughing It."

Murphy was once the center of a prosperous gold mining industry, and the Wells-Fargo people used to store bullion in the old adobe buildings which are still standing. Standing also are scores of old saloons on whose bars the cowboys now lie thickly—not because of the Eighteenth Amendment, but because it got few suited years ago, and Murphy the locale drive through Carmel, always inside of gates.

The party spent an entire month in California concluding with a visit to lovely San Francisco, with its wonderful harbor, locked by the Golden Gates. The visitors admired the hills and the scenery in general, and the rides by night were filled with fascination.

One of the social events in Frisco was an operatic tea, at which Mr. Davis was the only man present among 400 guests.

Hitting The Homeward Trail

The way back home led over the Southern trail, bringing new wonders and strange sights.

Two nights were spent in San Diego then across the border to Tia Juana, that mecca for so many Americans who crave an ultra sporting existence. Dinner in the patio, a visit to a noted gambling palace, where Ernest—willing to try anything once—actually came out ahead of the game.

Next day across Arizona to Yuma, with dinner at the Barbara Warren hotel, El Centro. In this interesting old railroad town the tourists were suddenly attacked by Indians armed with many hued blankets.

Now across a different kind of desert, where sage brush found a brave rival in the cacti. Souvenir postcards which were brought home show that portable wooden roads marked the trails formerly, but today they have been replaced by roads as good as are to be found anywhere. The tourists parked long enough in Yuma to inspect an old building which was once used as a penal institution, but whose cells now serve as homes for as many Mexicans as they will accommodate.

Sand, Sand, Everywhere

Still on through the desert, all day long, with nothing but sand everywhere. The party ate Thanksgiving dinner in Phoenix, Arizona, at a hotel which bore the romantic title of "Westward Ho."

The next jump was one of 400 miles to Tucson, a very interesting city where they registered at the Pioneer hotel. The travelers were lost in admiration of a wonderful sunset, and played golf on one of the loveliest courses they had ever seen.

The destination for the next day was Gadsden, N. M. Copper mines dotted the trail through New Mexico—all very interesting. The party rode across the line for dinner at what Mrs. Davis describes as rather a "spooky" place, but the quail was wonderful.

In El Paso, on the border, the travelers visited the principal stores, and in Dallas, Texas, next day inspected the cotton mills, and saw on every hand indications of the great oil industry that dominates the Lone Star State. Austin with its splendid Capitol buildings and Houston (the State's metropolis) with its homemade harbor were featured stops in Texas.

The Only Rainy Day

On the run from Houston to Orange, Texas, our tourists encountered their only stormy day, and it was stormy enough to make up for some of the lost time, the rainfall being to the accompaniment of thunder and lightning.

The night was spent with the William H. Starks who summer at the San Jose. Mr. Starks has a palatial home, and takes much pride in his farm, on which, among other stock, are 300 Brahma cows—the sacred cows of India. They are able to go without water several days.

One day and two nights were spent in that fascinating southern metropolis, New Orleans, which has not been ruined by the removal of the old French buildings. The old cemeteries, with the graves above ground are very interesting. Visits were paid to a museum of extraordinary interest, and to some quaint old missions, which served as a reminder of wonderful missions seen in Santa Barbara, Calif.

New Orleans is noted for its sea food, especially oysters and pompanos and these feature every menu at two of the city's noted restaurants the Galatoires and the Antioires.

Where Jeff Davis Died

Next day to Pensacola and Tallahassee, with dinner in the latter city. Enroute from New Orleans to Pensacola the tourists visited the house where Jefferson Davis leader of the Confederacy died—now a home for Confederate veterans. "My name's Davis, too, and my father was a soldier in the Civil War," said Ernest, as he entered the mess hall, where he had a jolly chat with some of the 100 veterans at the tables.

The tour through Florida was one of continuous joy. Our tourists saw the famous Bok Singing Tower at Lake Wales; crossed the famous Candy bridge into St. Petersburg; motored down that wonderful Tamiami Trail; saw miles of swamps, Indian dug-out homes, buzzards by the millions, and beautiful blue and white herons. On each side of the highway for miles were fish-filled canals. Indians were catching alligators. Everybody seemed to be fishing. On the way to Palm Beach stop was made at an alligator farm. Daytona Beach, longest and widest in the world—then on to Jacksonville.

Up The Atlantic Trail

To Augusta, Ga. was an interesting drive. Dinner was eaten at Partridge Inn where the tourists had the pleasure of meeting Preston Player, who summers at Dark Harbor. Thence to Pinehurst, N. C., with dinner at Hobbs Inn, in Camden. The tourists were guests at the Carolina Hotel. Ernest and Tom Keefe took a fling at horseback riding on this stop, and might have been riding still had not some kindly disposed citizen shown them the way back to the hotel.

In Washington two delightful days were spent with Mr. and Mrs. Fred W. Wight, and were recipients of the hospitality for which they are noted.

Mr. Davis paid a visit to Arlington Cemetery where lie the remains of his soldier father, the late Charles M. Davis, who served in the 1st U. S. Cavalry. He died during the last year of the war. Searching the archives in Washington Ernest found the original burial entry.

In Washington were met the members of Major Kenneth P. Lord's family, and their guests Mr. and Mrs. J. F. Cooper.

Back in Rockland Mr. and Mrs. Davis recall that the entire tour was in accordance with the itinerary originally laid out and that not one meal was missed. The success of the tour they attribute to Mrs. Warner's skill in planning, and to the delightfully hospitable friends encountered at various stages of the journey.

Ernest wrote frequently to friends back home, and at least one of his characteristic quips was answered in kind. While he was in San Francisco Mr. Davis received a note from a neighbor whom we will call Charles—for that is his name. The note was typewritten on the reverse side of a souvenir postcard giving a view of Rockland's Main street, and said: "Nice trip. Arrived here last night. One of best towns yet. No palms or terraces but plenty of lobsters and good fishing. Town has one splendid department store. You would be interested in its furs. Making this short as am bound out to a farm where a guy has a private trout pond. Understand he is away, and expect good fishing. Everything on B-way O. K."

A TOWN OF MOURNING

Camden Paying Last Tribute To Three Victims Of Crossing Accident At Woolwich

The tragedy at Woolwich which resulted in the instant death of Joseph Marshall and Harry A. Walker of Camden, was intensified later in the day by the death of a third member of the party, Edward Sherman Mitchell, at the hospital in Bath.

Word comes from that institution that David Crockett and Orion Wadsworth are making reasonably rapid recovery, and that both will probably be able to return home in about a week. Relatives of the two boys, are frequently with them, and many evidences of kindness are being shown for the two boys who had such a miraculous escape from sharing the terrible fate of their three comrades.

The minds of both boys are a blank as to the incidents directly preceding the tragedy. Neither saw the oncoming train until their own vehicle was directly upon the crossing.

The automobile, a two-door Oldsmobile, was owned by Mr. Marshall, who occupied the driver's seat. With him in front was Harry Walker and between them sat Mr. Marshall's bird dog, which was also killed in the crash.

David Crockett sat directly behind Mr. Marshall, Sherman Mitchell was in the center of the rear seat, and Orion Wadsworth sat back of Walker.

The terrific force of the impact may be judged by those who subsequently viewed the damaged Maine Central locomotive or those who saw the wrecked motor car, the latter such a complete mass of ruins that it is beyond human ken how anybody escaped from it alive. The cow-catcher was torn from the locomotive and one of the steam pipes was smashed. Lowell Chapman was the engineer and Fred True was the conductor. As already told in the Saturday issue of this paper the train was eastbound and due in Rockland at 10:20 a. m., while the automobile was conveying its owner back to Belmont, Mass., where Mr. Marshall was instructor of home mechanics in the Junior High School. The four younger men were all students at the Oxford School of Business Administration, and were returning to Cambridge, Mass., after having spent the holiday recess at their homes in Camden.

The tragedy occurred at the Montsweag crossing between Woolwich and Wiscasset, considered by many persons a blind grade crossing, although it was much easier to note the train's approach from the westward than it would have been had the train been coming from the opposite direction.

The dead and living victims were taken as far as Wiscasset on the train, the living being subsequently returned to Bath for treatment at the hospital. The bodies of Marshall and Walker were taken in charge by Undertaker Percy J. Good of Camden, while that of young Mitchell was cared for by Bowes & Crozier, who have a branch establishment in Rockport.

Crockett is suffering from a fracture of the skull, not regarded as serious; cuts on the forehead and back of head; bad cuts on the left leg; and a very lame back. He is a son of Mr. and Mrs. David C. Crockett of 25 Central street.

Wadsworth, who was least injured of the five men in the car, had injuries to his left hip, and had a cut on his forehead which required 11 stitches. He also had a minor cut on the back of the head. He is a son of Mr. and Mrs. John Wadsworth.

The first of the three victims was laid at rest yesterday afternoon, when services for Mr. Marshall were held at the home of his parents, Hudson T. and Rene (Josselyn) Marshall, Pearl street, Rev. Leroy Campbell officiating. The bearers were Leslie Marshall, Joseph Marshall, Walter Maurer and Arthur Macomber. The interment was in Mountain Street cemetery. The deceased was a native of Camden, 33 years of age, and besides his parents, is survived by his wife and daughter, one brother, Arthur; and two sisters, Mrs. Gertrude Paige and Mrs. Roy Allen, both of Camden. Mr. Marshall had a summer home in Camden and had been visiting his relatives there.

The funeral services of Sherman Mitchell will be held at 1 o'clock this afternoon, at the home of his aunt, Mrs. S. N. Butler of Central street, by whom he was adopted at the age of 5 years. Rev. Mr. Campbell will officiate. The deceased was 20 years of age, and a native of Liberty. He is survived by his mother, Mrs. Earl Reynolds of Somerville, Mass.; one sister, Mrs. Audrey Mitchell of Boston; and one brother, Kenneth, of Camden.

The funeral of Harry Walker will take place at 2 o'clock this afternoon, at the home of his parents, Arthur H. and Louise (Currier) Walker, 7 Grove street. Rev. A. E. Luce officiating. The deceased was 18 years of age and an only child.

The tragedy marks the passing of three Camden High School graduates—Marshall 1918, Mitchell 1929, and Walker 1930. The survivors are also graduates of this school, Wadsworth being well known to Knox County baseball fans as the first baseman of the Camden team in the Knox County Twilight League last season.

From the Bath Times' report of the tragedy the following is quoted: "Mr. and Mrs. Frank B. Nichols of Bath with their driver, Percy O. Johnson, and with Mrs. Arthur K. Purington a guest, came near being eye witnesses to the accident as they were on their way to Boothbay Harbor. They witnessed the approach of the train, but its passing hid from view the automobile approaching the crossing from the opposite side. They were the first to arrive after the accident. While train hands were rendering first aid to the wounded men, Mr. Nichols went to the Charles Henry Butler Farm to telephone for doctors and an ambulance to meet the train when it arrived in Wiscasset. Mr. Nichols complimented the operator on duty at the Wiscasset exchange for prompt and efficient service.

A sad feature in connection with this accident is the fact that the highway has already been staked from Montsweag Farm for a short distance west for another road to swing off from the present highway and eventually cross the railroad tracks by overhead to avoid the grade crossing, and it is planned to make this improvement next year. "Sheriff Albert Henderson and Dr. Langdon T. Snipe, Sagadahoc county medical examiner, made an immediate investigation and after viewing the remains of Marshall and Walker, Dr. Snipe gave the cause of death as fractured skulls in both cases."

THAT AVIATION MAP
New England Council Explains Omission—Another Question Asked.

From Robert Huse, editorial executive of the New England Council, comes an explanation of why Rockland did not figure on the air map recently published in the New England News Letters. Following is a copy of a letter which Mr. Huse wrote to R. W. Boydston of Boston who, apparently, made an inquiry as to the merits of The Courier-Gazette's recent criticism:

"I am very much surprised to hear that citizens of Rockland, Maine criticize the Council for leaving the Rockland airport off the aviation map which we published in the fifth anniversary issue of the New England News Letters. "Permit me to call your attention to the fact that the only aviation map published in this issue of the News Letter was a map of the route taken by the first New England Air Tour, and the only airports marked upon that map were those at which either pass-overs or stops were definitely scheduled and made by that tour.

"I would appreciate your calling this fact to the attention of any of these critics with whom you may come in contact."

The Courier-Gazette is very glad to publish this explanation, because of its desire to be absolutely fair but it cannot refrain from asking why the "first New England Air Tour" did not include a visit to the Rockland Airport—one of the largest and most successful in the Eastern country.

THREE-TIMES-A-WEEK

Rockland, Me., Jan. 6, 1931.
Personally appeared Frank S. Lydie, who on oath declares that he is President in the office of The Courier-Gazette, and that the issue of this paper of Jan. 3, 1931, was printed a total of 6279 copies.
W. F. BUTLER, Notary Public.

For I the Lord thy God will hold thy right hand, saying unto thee, Fear not; I will help thee.—Isa. 41:13.

The first meeting for 1931 of the Speech Readers' Club took place Friday afternoon with a goodly number present. It was voted unanimously to become a member of the American Federation of Organizations for the Hard of Hearing. The Federation was organized 11 years ago by Dr. Wendell Phillips, and out of the 91 clubs in the United States and Canada, 55 are constituent bodies of this organization. These 55 clubs are banded together to carry out the worthy aims of the Federation, both in the national and international field. The Federation has the highest ethical standing, endorsed by the American Medical Association and otologists of note. It was also voted to hold the weekly meetings on Thursday afternoon instead of Friday. Mrs. Frank Hewitt was elected chairman of the sewing group, and Miss Olive Gilchrist, chairman of the Federation membership drive for direct members. An interesting note on the bulletin board announced that Miss Eliza Hannegan of Portland has been appointed chairman of the program committee for the Zonal Conference which meets in Springfield, Mass., Feb. 20-21. Miss Hannegan is remembered as coming to Rockland each week to conduct lessons in speech reading, both class and private. The next meeting will be Thursday afternoon of this week at 2:30.

COURT HOUSE CHANGES

The county commissioners organized last Friday with George W. Starrett of Warren as chairman. He succeeds, in that capacity, George W. Gushue of Appleton, who retires from the board after years of service which have been faithfully devoted to the interest of Knox County's taxpayers. Mr. Starrett has two more years to serve. Mrs. Mary Perry Rich has four more years, and Adin L. Hopkins of Camden is the new member elected for the full six-year term. The commissioners appointed Dr. F. F. Brown as jail physician. He succeeds Dr. F. O. Bartlett who has been jail physician for a number of years.

The funeral services of Harold F. Robinson who died suddenly in Waterville, Conn., were held Saturday afternoon. Rev. Dr. J. M. Lewis of St. John's Church officiating. The body was placed in the receiving tomb, and in the spring will be brought to Rockland for interment. In the course of his obituary mention the Waterville American said: "Mr. Robinson entered the employ of Mr. Judd at the Seaside Hotel in Rockland, Me., when a mere boy, serving as bell boy there, and came to Waterville with Mr. Judd 25 years ago. He was always a loyal and faithful employee, doing the duties of whatever position he held well and thoroughly, and rose by gradual stages, from his humble position as bell boy to the responsibilities of clerk, and finally assistant manager. He was very well known to all patrons of the hotel, and commanded the respect and affection of all who were in any way associated with him. He will be greatly missed and sincerely mourned by all who knew him."

The Seacoast Mission boat Sunbeam was in port this weekend, and Rev. Orville J. Gupitt, the man in charge of this work, was still smiling happily as he thought of the pleasure he had derived from playing the role of Santa Claus in many remote ports along the coast. The Mission's Christmas effort this year was an unusually extended one, and brought joy to many families. Through 7800 miles of sunshine and fog the Sunbeam has carried the spirit of service in a thousand helpful ways to the people of the lonely isles and isolated coastal neighborhoods of Maine. Always alert to opportunity in whatever fashion winter and summer alike she has satisfied highest expectations. The Christmas list included the names of 1940 individuals in 105 different communities. The clothing exchange organized sales reaching over 100 families while 75 families received special packages of clothing. Practical and of many varieties was rendered individuals in every community ministered to.

The Loyal Temperance Legion has begun its work for the new year with a drive for new members. The plan for conducting this drive is to have two sides, the Reds and the Blues, under captains, continuing through March when the losing side will provide the "cats" for a social. Charlotte Mattattal was chosen captain of the Reds, Alice Clancy of the Blues. Bows of red and of blue ribbon will be given out to wear with the L.T.L. pins. Project work for the month of November was the making of 20 scrap books for the Children's Hospital and for December 40 Sunshine Envelopes were made for the soldiers in the U. S. hospital at Portsmouth, N. H. A playlet, "A New Alice in Wonderland," is in preparation to be given Feb. 20.

The Forty Club started its new year with a rattling good session and half a hundred members in attendance. A special drive is on for January with all feature programs and next Monday is promised as an extraordinary proposition, absolutely new to Forty Club experience. Rehearsals are now on. Senator Zelma Dwinall yesterday expounded his road plans and was given assurances of the club's lively interest. Walter Conley developed much unsuspected singing talent in the chorus. The club unanimously voted to support a Red Cross patient for a month and a favorite guest, A. E. Weisman, added another week's board money amid applause.

LOBSTER HANDLING

Are Scientific Methods To Work Great Changes? "Fishing" Asks

The current issue of "Fishing" that widely read journal of the commercial fisheries contains an article which all Knox County lobstermen and dealers will read with interest. It follows:

Is lobster farming one of the important developments of the seafood industry of tomorrow? Will scientific methods work the great changes in the raising and handling of lobsters as has been the case in the oyster industry? Can the problem of cannibalism be successfully solved so that lobsters may be raised to maturity without destroying one another? There are millions in it. A great wave of prosperity seems to be in store for the lobstermen of the Canadian Maritimes, Maine, Massachusetts, Rhode Island and Connecticut.

This past summer Stanley V. Nickerson, of the Consolidated Lobster Company of Boston, made an exhaustive study of the lobster fisheries of New Brunswick and Nova Scotia. A better man for such a job would be hard to find. Not only is he connected with an important lobster business, but he previously had his own fleet of lobster boats on the Maine coast.

It is his opinion that the importation of lobsters from the provinces to Boston is not a menace to the lobstermen of Massachusetts or other nearby states. There has never been an over supply in the sense that any had to go to waste or sell at ridiculously low prices. He points out that in the lobster business the greater the supply, the greater is the demand.

This is due to the fact that lobster meat is a decided luxury. As a luxury it is in great demand when the prices fall within reach of the medium priced buying market. When the price remains high the demand shows a marked decrease, for it is a commodity that can be readily dispensed with.

One great difficulty with the lobster fisheries is an excessive supply of lobsters going after a limited supply of lobsters. As a result it is difficult for any of them to make a worthwhile living. It is an unfortunate situation, but one that may ultimately adjust itself. When the price of lobsters drops from time to time the fishermen suffer unless they can increase their catches enough to take care of the loss.

The provinces have only set seasons when they are able to fish for lobsters. In New Brunswick the season runs from August 15th to October 15th. This is not the best time of the year. September 1st to November 1st would be better. Mr. Nickerson suggests. The hot weather of August makes lobsters caught at this time unsuitable for marketing. They are thin shelled and will not stand transportation. As a result great losses are suffered all along the line.

In Nova Scotia the season runs from March 1st to June 1st. This works well. The water is cold and the lobsters are harder. During this period of the year but few lobsters are marketed by our local lobstermen and importation of the Nova Scotia product is necessary. Spring is by far the best season for lobsters.

The transportation facilities need to be improved. This is especially true during the warm weather, when the lobster changes its shell and is soft. The prevailing methods are slow and great losses are suffered by any of the slight delays which occur only too frequently. Freight and express rates are too high. Refrigerated motor trucks should be used to speed up transportation over stages of the journey where delays most frequently occur. Improvement in the methods used by the steamers is also advocated in his report.

The time is fast approaching when new methods of maintaining a constant supply must be arranged. As things are now, everything is uncertain. It is impossible to plan very far ahead, for often shipments arrive with heavy shrinkage and bad lobsters. The catch is always uncertain.

The answer to this problem, he feels sure, is the establishment of lobster farms. Lobsters will be propagated under expert supervision. Even now shorts can be handled in this manner. The commercial possibilities are plain when one considers that with each shedding of shell the lobster may increase its weight some 50 percent, and that as the weight gets greater, the value increases. The lobster is one of the hardiest of edible sea life and the work of lobster farming should not present insurmountable difficulties. By doing this a supply can be maintained close at hand at all times and the work of gathering in the catch is greatly simplified.

Do not forget admission fee is 25 cents for men and 10 cents for ladies.

Mrs. Almida Creighton

Mrs. Almida Creighton of Union who died Dec. 27 was an old resident of this part of the town. She had many friends here who have always known her and too much cannot be said of her goodness of heart and cheerful disposition. Many sorrows had come into her life but through it all her trust was in Him who knoweth best. She leaves two sons, Frank Creighton and Fred Creighton who have cared for her tenderly through her declining years. Charles Mank has a Kolster radio recently installed by Frank Gordon of Union.

Miss Evelyn Erickson is visiting her aunt Mrs. Bertha Russell in Rockport. Burleigh Mank has bought a radio of Frank Gordon.

SAYS MRS. HAMMONS

There Isn't Anything Bigger—Than Loyalty This Side of Heaven.

The monthly meeting of the BPW Club was held New Year's Eve with Mrs. Sara Laffin Hammons, president of the State Federation of BPW Clubs as guest speaker. Readings by

Mrs. Clara Johnson and vocal solos by Mrs. Hazel Burr Atwood contributed to a most interesting program. Refreshments were served, Miss Ethel Payson serving as hostess. Mrs. Hammons said in part:

There is so much for us to do in our club work that the selection of a few objectives to talk about is not easy. I am particularly interested, this year, in our starting a worthwhile state wide project, something that we can work on as a federation and for this project we have decided to sponsor a recreational camp for the young business woman, putting on a worthwhile vocational program in addition to the recreational program. If we start this for the young business woman we expect it will finally result in the federation owning its own camps.

We must work with the high school girls and the young business girls who are the business women of tomorrow particularly influencing the young girls to have at least a high school education. In connection with our personal research and vocational guidance work we should include vocational guidance for the High School girl, our clubs should have committees to make a study of scholarship funds and ways and means through which girls who are unable to finance a college education may get that college training as there are so many opportunities now for worthy girls. There are so many girls who at the completion of high school do not know what to do, therefore if our clubs would have a committee of successful business women who would discuss such problems with those girls we would be taking an important step towards making Better Business Women for a Better Business World.

"Woman is in business and she is there to stay. The still small voice which insists 'there is no place like home' for her has grown increasingly faint with time. For those women whose household duties no longer occupy their whole interest, knowledge of business comes as a Godsend. The diseases of discontent—even more than those of poverty—are often cured by the medicine of business enterprise. I hope loyalty will always be prevalent in our clubs, let's make loyalty our pass word with an invisible motto over our door, 'Bring no tattle in, take no tattle out.' Remember there isn't anything bigger than loyalty this side of Heaven."

The managers of the Home for Aged Women will meet Wednesday at 2.30 at the home of Mrs. Elizabeth Burpee.

9 CENT SALE FULLER-COBB-DAVIS

Special Announcement To Our Customers

Beginning January 9th, 1931, this Famous Day's Sale lasted 30 minutes, and it closed out a small lot of odd nine cent articles from our over-crowded shelves. During the intervening years, this sale has constantly been growing, and during the last few years has reached such a tremendous patronage that we have been unable to take care of the rush properly.

Five years ago we added an extra day, and we have still been unable to keep pace with the Nine Cent Day following.

We have not the accumulation of merchandise that can be disposed of regardless of cost—this sale comprises practically our entire stock of choice merchandise, with but a few exceptions of restricted articles. Never before in our history have we been able to offer such a clean desirable stock of merchandise as our 1931 January sale offers.

Last year 10,000 people visited this Sale, a number equal to the entire population of Rockland, and it was impossible for us to give our usual service to such a throng in two days' time.

So—to do an old thing in a new way, since last year we have extended the 9c Sale to NINE DAYS beginning Friday, January 9th, continuing to Monday, January 19th, inclusive

This year, by extending our sale over nine days, our out of town patrons will be able to share in the many good things we offer, and take their time in selecting them, and go away better satisfied.

We expect, and hope to see all of our regular NINE

CENT DAYS Shoppers, and many new ones this year.

We sincerely wish to thank all those who have for the past quarter century helped to make our Nine Cent Days a success, and on this historic day we will welcome all new comers.

Sale begins at 9 o'clock each day as heretofore.

FOLLOWING THIS SALE WILL BE OUR ANNUAL NINE CENT DAY CHARITY DANCE TIME AND PLACE TO BE ANNOUNCED

Planes, Pilots —and— Passengers

(By F.V.F.)

An experienced columnist would no doubt have his copy written up several weeks in advance to cover the contingency of a prolonged absence, but as this columnist is a wholly inexperienced and somewhat dilly writer, it must be composed of the materials at hand where he happens to be.

Flying in New Jersey is as different from flying in Maine as climate and geography and population can make it. Fields are larger and infinitely more numerous. Except over the thickly settled vicinity of Newark, Jersey City, and Hoboken, there are very few spots where it would be difficult to make a forced landing, and even above those places it looks as though one could stretch out a glide from three or four thousand feet to a safe landing somewhere away from the tangle of high tension wires, railroad tracks, and buildings. The activity in aviation is of course more intense in proportion as the population is heavier and trade and industry more concentrated. On a flight to Wilmington, Del., and return from Teterboro we passed at least eight planes, three of which were large transport ships.

At Caldwell Airport Sunday, where an air circus had been advertised, but was not held on account of weather, 200 to 250 cars were parked while the visitors roamed around trying to keep warm in the lee of the hangar while two or three pilots did a little hedge-hopping and some wine-overs in order to keep the machines performing was 387M, the Travel Air biplane with which Charlie Treat has so often thrilled Maine crowds.

An air circus at Caldwell is a common occurrence, but the management has maintained such excellent programs with features like Hawks, Alford Williams, and the Autogyro that large crowds still turn out whenever one is staged—still expecting to see some fool aviator break his neck. As yet no one has lapsed into the Atlantic Ocean from over the airport.

The passenger hopping was about one-tenth what it would have been in a Rockland crowd of equal size. There are more students taking instruction there than at Rockland and quite a few privately owned planes are kept in the hangar, but so far they have established no regular run nor daily services such as the Portland-Rockland paper route. This activity interests them very much. It will probably be a common event in the daily life of many communities before long.

The entire force is only two-thirds the number at Rockland and only two full time pilots, one of whom is the manager, are on hand. Although the number of planes in the hangar is about the same as we have, many of them are privately owned and as to equipment such as machine shop, dope room, and so forth, their facilities do not compare with ours. Of course they are within easy reach of airplane and engine factories, and large airports with complete service facilities so there is not the need for a self-contained operating unit that exists in Rockland, but it is interesting to draw comparisons and conclusions.

If these characteristics indicate anything they seem to point to a greater increase in activity and a wider field of service for the Rockland Airport than for airports of the same size in this region. There is more work going on at Rockland, it is of a more vital nature in the life of the community, and it is less dependent on other centers of aviation than the airports of comparable size down here.

It would not be exaggerating the truth to say that Rockland's progress beyond the development of fields like Caldwell is attributable to one man. Admitting that due to its position the latter could not have risen much further in the relative importance of its business as compared with the neighboring airports, it is just as true that the Rockland base might not be operating the various services that it does maintain had not the man in charge of it had more than ordinary vision and enterprise.

With any considerable traffic demands such as travel to the north of the state, ship-plane service from the land to ocean going vessels, or a trans-Atlantic route, Rockland is bound to develop into an aviation center of national importance. Even now it would be more logical to compare it with Newark, Philadelphia or Boston than with Caldwell, for those are the places where center the most vital activities in aviation for their respective regions.

Pilot Hazen Bean and student Max White arrived from Charlotetown, P.E.I., Friday afternoon in the Pledge. They left Rockland Monday morning and made Charlotetown that afternoon stopping in St. John N.B. to clear the customs. Their reports show that the Provinces are enjoying a mild winter, as St. John has less snow than we have and it was found to be difficult to land and take off on skis. They have the honor of being the first passengers and plane to be cleared at Rockland Airport under the new regulations. The Customs House here was ably represented by Charles R. Meeve, who found everything to be in order. This new service is of great value to air travelers and will be used many times this coming summer. It will bring many ships to Rockland. It has been heretofore a matter of guesswork as to just how to clear an airplane embarking for a foreign country; now the Customs Officials take care of it in a pleasing manner and a plane is cleared much the same as a vessel, and of course it takes but a few moments.

The big Loening amphibian opened the new run to Stonington last Tuesday morning and the people from the island community are taking to air travel quickly as the passenger list grows with each trip it makes.

Then there was the case of the Aroostook woman who was arrested for rum selling.

One of the citizens of the town was telling about it. "They put her under bonds," he said, "but she couldn't get bail, so they let her go."

Which seems simple enough.—Portland Express.

EDUCATIONAL CLUB

Hears Forceful Declaration Against Political Pitfall By W. A. Holman.

Able speakers, excellent music and interesting current events, spiced by a good measure of wit and humor, characterized the meeting of the Woman's Educational Club Friday afternoon and evening. Mrs. Lena Merrill proved an admirable hostess.

The afternoon speaker was Mrs. Lena K. Sargent, whose address had already appeared in this paper; a lesson review of the Presidents of the United States was among the interesting topics discussed. Mrs. Mary Perry Rich and Mrs. Rebecca Ingraham were high line on finance. The critics named for the next fortnight are Nellie Hall, Maude Blodgett, Clara Guptill, Clara Spaulding and Nettie Stuart. "Watch your step" is the caution offered.

Mrs. Harold Nash created much interest with her paper on "Maine Honors Her Outstanding Farmers and Home-makers."

The entertainment program included a vocal solo by Miss Louise Nash, a recitation by Miss Alice Start—all commendably done.

These women were voted into membership: 41 in all.

Mrs. Ruby Allen, Mrs. Roxanna Albee, Eva Bulloch, Manchester, N. H., Edna Ames, Mrs. Frank J. Blood, Adah Carnes, Mary Crie, Mrs. Perley Damon, Grace Dyer, Florence Danforth, Skowhegan; Miss Ruth Donahue, Mrs. Marion Daly, Miss Madeline De Vore, Houlton; Mrs. William Frye, Mrs. E. H. Gregory, Mrs. Clara Guptill, M. G. Gurney, Miss Martha E. Jones, Thomaston; Mrs. Obadiah Gardner, Mrs. Arnold Jones, Miss Margaret Murphy, Mrs. Frank Kimball, Mrs. Ethel Lurvey, Mrs. Jennie Lindsey, Mrs. Cassie McLoud, Mrs. Earl McIntosh, Mrs. E. Stewart Orbeton, Miss Frances Risteen, Mrs. Carl Stevens, Mrs. Charlotte Spear, Mrs. Nettie Smalley, Mrs. Albert Staples, Boothbay Harbor; Miss Joyce Whitehall, Mrs. Ruth Williams, Mrs. Anna D. Young, Mrs. Florence Ellis, Mrs. C. H. Hapsworth, Mrs. Margaret Hupper, Mrs. Alice Oxtun, Miss Mary Buttomer. Seven applications for membership were presented.

The guest speaker at the evening session was William A. Holman of Portland, whose address on "Pitfalls of Practical Politics from the Christian Standpoint" revealed a great deal of thought and research, presented in a most entertaining manner. These excerpts are made:

We all may deplore the tendency of certain religious bodies to attempt to interfere with the Congress, and in government—yet we must assert the necessity of a Christian viewpoint by the individual.

Right-minded citizens stand for the high ideals in every nation, while the evil-minded, who would eliminate God from human affairs, stand for all things which would destroy society and banish culture from the consciousness of mankind.

However much the Soviet Government may obtain in a material form for the great masses in Russia, and it is accomplishing much, it will break itself upon the rock of infidelity. God rules this universe, and no nation can endure that seeks to destroy faith in the minds of its people.

Women have definitely and forever entered politics. What, then, is more natural than for them to consider some of the pitfalls which might entrap them. My first pitfall then, is for you never to forget your sex.

If it turns out that you are braver in facing problems, franker in your outlooks, clearer in your understanding, more intellectual in your grasp of affairs than men—more power to you—but never seek any role, either of duty or ambition, other than as women.

Do not enter politics lightly, with a flapper's viewpoint, or as a new type of women, but rather as women conscious that all they love is at stake. Men will respect you as you respect yourselves. There is in the mind of some women the thought that to be equal with men precludes the idea of womanliness—a belief that women should give and take, ask no favors, and give no quarter. To a certain extent, that is good sportsmanship, but to an extent that it means loss of femininity, it is folly. The second pitfall, if I might suggest, would be the danger of not thinking things through for yourselves. Men were divided and deceived upon the question of slavery.

Men were deceived about polygamy. Read the debates in Congress in favor of and against this cancer that was eating into the very vitals of the nation.

The arguments, declared by those in its favor were, that it was a system Moses taught, which God allowed, and from which the Saviour sprang. They drew fine distinctions between bigamy, which not only wronged the first wife, but the second was described as being both legal and odd, by rendering the last marriage null and void; while polygamy was described as being both legal and religious, entered into with the knowledge and consent of both wives.

Do not be deceived by specious arguments, even by your own men-folks. Things to be tested today must be tested by moral values, not arguments.

The third pitfall we may consider is subtle propaganda. For it can be truthfully said that the greatest menace in our national life is heavily financed propaganda. During the late war how many times we felt victims to dangerous insidious, and even treasonable propaganda.

Today we find it directed against the President, the Congress, railroads, in the interest of blocs.

We have seen the fatal trail in public domain and oil scandals. It is used against the 18th Amendment, and invades the field of religion, and even pours its noxious way into famine and drought relief; into birth control; the exclusion of foreign fruits; and against immigration.

You will be beset with propaganda for the continuance of war—today the darkest cloud hanging over the human race. Propaganda against the World Court and our entrance into the League of Nations.

At no point is this menace more dangerous than as directed against the 18th Amendment. We are told that crimes of violence, of smuggling, and defiance of law are at the peak, and the United States will have to repeal this Amendment, because the nation cannot enforce its constitutional provisions. If this be true, representative government has failed. Can any woman believe that our domestic happiness has not improved since the abolition of the saloon? Or that our boys and girls are not having a fairer chance than in the days when there was a legalized and open rumshop upon every other corner.

Be not deceived. Against all the arguments of men who would traffic in drink, hear a great voice—a woman's voice. Ask yourself who knows any more about poverty, vice, and the evils of drunkenness than the Salvation Army and the Volunteers of America.

There is one more pitfall that has trapped men in politics—it is not possible to dwell upon it, but it is real and should be mentioned. It is political expediency. Whether in our legislature, or in the National Congress, as bills are reported out of committee, it becomes necessary to secure votes—to carry the measure worked for, into the enactment of law. Others have measures, some good, some evil, and then stalk forth the pitfall of expediency. "If you will support my measure, I will support yours."

WORDS from a WANDERER by Harry A. Daniels

This Is "Gooda News," Harry Daniels' Mexican Newsboy, In Whom The Courier-Gazette Readers Are Interested

Magie Valley of Texas
Hooray! Magnifico! An editor in south Texas writes: "A body of a man taken for a ride, is found in a deserted automobile . . . five bank robberies in this state last night . . . a woman is arrested, and a magistrate, who arrested her, refuses to listen to the story of her innocence; she is jailed . . . six holdups in one city yesterday. . . a magistrate is indicted; he bought his job on the bench . . . racketeers are running fake charity shows . . . four murders yesterday in one state, and so it goes in our civilization." Then the editor adds:

"Beginning tomorrow this newspaper is going to stop publishing this sort of news. Murders, robberies, holdups, arson, and other national crime news will find no space in these columns. If something happens in this community that deserves publication, we will handle it. World crime is out. We believe there is enough good news, enough news of a cheerful character to fill these columns and we are going to look for it. Surely with all the bad there must be some good concealed, somewhere, and we are going to make it our business to try and find it and give it to our readers."

That editor is an exception. He is brave. He will receive many letters of commendation for the stand he has taken, and I doubt if his circulation will be harmed in the least.

Most of us believe that this national crime wave is something new—something our grandparents never experienced. We are inclined to look back and reason that in the days of the Puritans and the Pilgrims everyone was honest; there were few murders, little stealing. We picture them going to church regularly, and often, with no movies, no automobiles, no bridge parties, or gin, or home brew or necking to interfere with prayer meeting or Sunday worship. We read in the papers now that judges are corrupt in the larger cities and that "you cannot put a million dollars in jail." That there is no justice for the poor man and that the rich man can buy his way out, no matter what the crime. That is the universal opinion just at this time in which we are living. We are inclined to hark back to "the good old days" and bemoan the wickedness of the present as something that has visited us with an advanced civilization. With these thoughts in my mind last night, I reached over to a book shelf and picked a book at random. In the same careless manner I opened the book and started to read. It was Cicero. The first oration against Verres, delivered in Rome in the year 70 B. C.

If you think our crime wave is new, just read what Cicero said to the corrupt judges 70 years before the birth of Christ: "That which was above all things to be desired, O judges, and which above all things was calculated to have the greatest influence toward allaying the unpopularity of your order, and putting an end to the discredit into which your judicial decisions have fallen, appears to have been thrown in your way, and given to you not by any human contrivance, but almost by the interposition of the gods, at a most important crisis of the republic."

"For an opinion has now become established, pernicious to us, and pernicious to the republic, which has been the common talk of every one, not only at Rome, but among foreign nations also—that in the courts of law, as they exist at present, no wealthy man, however guilty he may be, can possibly be convicted."

QUERY ON CEMENT DUST DAMAGE

The committee investigating the cement dust question is engaged in the task of assembling all available information as to the nature and extent of damage to personal property done by dust from the cement plant on the County Road. Our organization is seeking to ascertain the facts, not to prove any particular fact, and it is quite as important to our purpose to receive full reports, whether or not the persons reporting consider that they are suffering damages or not. We accordingly ask that all who receive this questionnaire answer the questions carefully, whether affirmatively or in the negative. If you consider the damage slight or negligible, this information will be quite as important as more positive reports.

All information will be held in strict confidence. Your name will not be used without your permission, nor your statements made public. You may give your experiences without fear of future annoyance or publicity.

A prompt reply will be greatly appreciated. Kindly check with cross in square any of the following damages or annoyances suffered. If you wish to make further comments, do so under remarks.

Per order, Committee order and to your tribunal, when men are ready to attempt by harangues, and by the proposal of new laws, to increase the existing unpopularity of the senate, Caus Verres is brought to trial as a criminal, a man condemned in the opinion of every one by his life and actions, but acquitted by the enormity of his wealth, according to his own boast. . . .

And so we may hark back to Cicero, (born 106 B. C.), and some of his 57 orations, and find that even in those days "you could not put a million dollars in jail." Evidently a crime wave is nothing new. Verres, as governor of Sicily at that time, had plundered the island of its art treasures and other property, for his own personal gain. . . .

Those who kindly sent pictures for Christopher, the Mexican newsboy, will be pleased to learn that he located me at 7 a. m. Christmas morning. No Christmas tree had prevented him getting on the job with his papers. His greeting was "Bueno Natale,"—having to do with The Nativity. With Christmas greetings I transferred to him some cash The Courier-Gazette had mailed for him, and he confided, with sparkling eyes, that his cash gifts now amounted to $5.60 and he hoped to reach $6 before night, which he said would be "better'n last year."

Across the Gulf here, over in Havana, they have no mistletoe, holly or trees on December 25, but they dance and feast. However, gifts are not exchanged until January 6, which is the date, according to the Spanish version of the New Testament, of the arrival of the wise men at Bethlehem, with gifts for the new-born King.
